Sharing appreciation and acknowledgment

One benefit of belonging to the Chamber of Commerce is the relationships business people build with each other. Members typically turn to each other first when sourcing the products or services they need to make their companies and organizations successful and strong. Shout Outs are an opportunity for company representatives to thank and recognize fellow Chamber members they've worked with.

Shout Out to Steve Scro from the Mohawk House for opening his doors to JCP&L in a time of need when a microburst went through Lake Mohawk causing severe damage to our equipment, resulting in numerous power outages. Steve's building in Lake Mohawk served as a staging site that helped JCP&L manage the storm restoration efforts in an efficient manner. Not only did Steve turn over the keys to his building in the middle of the night, he delivered food throughout the day for our staff.
